By Ruby Compton

Wayne F. Buell was born and raised here in Heber City. His parents, Jay and Elouise Buell, owned and operated a dairy farm in the North Fields near Heber, but when Wayne was eight years old, they sold out and bought a farm on the north side of the Lake Creek Road just east of the Old Mill corner.

Wayne learned to love farming and helped in making a success of his father's carefully tended farm. Wayne was interested in Scout activities and he became an Eagle Scout. As he grew up and found a little time away from the farm chores and school, he enjoyed hunting, fishing and skiing. He still enjoys these hobbies.

After graduating from Wasatch High School, Wayne spent one year at Utah State University. Then he left there to fill a two year LDS Mission in the Texas North Spanish speaking missionfield. He learned to speak the language of these people and to appreciate their culture. After returning home, he returned for his second year at Utah State, then he attended the BYU for the next two years, where he earned his degree in agriculture and economics.

To pay for his tuition and other expenses as well as the car he needed to commute to and from school, Wayne began work
